Updates & Announcements

- Business offered 2 levels of Arts Enterprise this year, both were full and well-received. Sarah Marty taught the lower level course that deals with starting one's own enterprise, while John Surdyck taught the upper level course that deals with entrepreneurship within organizations. Both will be offered again.
- First Wave is overhauling the curriculum under the new faculty director Amaud Johnson. We need an Arts Institute representative on advisory committee for First Wave ==>Kate will talk to Amaud again about sitting in/joining.
- Dance is offering several summer courses; MFA is still in the works; the department is hosting several major events:
  - Regional High School Dance Festival in March 2017
    => John suggested coordinating a tour at the Studio while they are on campus
  - Dance Department's 90th anniversary in fall 2016
  - ACDFA in spring 2017
- Arts Institute has produced a promo webpage and flyer about summer arts camps for middle and high school students (Art, Dance, Theatre, Music). AI staff Terry Kerr is sending the information out to public schools, arts teachers statewide, community arts programs, etc.

Integrated Arts

- Implementation meeting
  - AI hosted an implementation meeting for Integrated Arts on May 11 with representatives from APIR, Registrar's office, L&S, and School of Ed.
  - Cross-listing issue: Kate shared objections to L&S cross-listing ban with the implementation group. L&S and APIR suggest that departments include a course in list of program requirements to make sure it will count. This is a better solution than cross-listing or doing individual DARS actions. L&S might consider allowing cross-listing between Integrated Arts and L&S courses – would need to revisit at APC.
  - Kate and Norma will have a follow up meeting with APIR to discuss more details.
- Integrated Arts Program guidelines – the group reviewed and provided feedback on the 2nd draft, which Kate will update. The guidelines also need to be passed by other interested parties (Jeff Hamm, Elaine Klein, etc.) and the AAC will need to approve a final version in August. The guidelines will be shared with the Steering Committee (incoming AI director will decide whether a vote is required).

New course proposals

- While the eight 469 courses need to be renamed or deleted, need to make sure they are still available until the new courses for the Studio and Arts Enterprise are created. This means they won't be able to go up to UCC with the new IARP course proposal.
- Kate will work on these over the summer and have them ready to submit at the beginning of fall.
